

Press Release 18/2007

RTT receives investment from Balderton Capital and enters into the next stage of corporate development.

RTT Teams up with Balderton Capital

Munich, December 19, 2007 – RTT is laying the ground for the next stage of growth and development. Since its foundation in 1999, the company has shown impressively that its 3D visualization business model works and will now enter into the next phase of strategic corporate development. Balderton Capital, London, formerly Benchmark Capital Europe, provides funding, know-how and a rich network. As part of this next stage Balderton has invested around €7m in RTT.

With 260 people staff, successful operations in Europe, the US and Asia as well as a prominent reference list, RTT has become the key player in professional high-end visualization technology and services for the automotive, aircraft and consumer goods industries. "Now is the right time to shift into a higher gear, to build a truly global organization and to leverage the benefits of high-end visualization for product development and marketing/sales. Balderton Capital has an extremely competent team that will help us raise the bar in the industry to outweigh our competitors", says Ludwig A. Fuchs, founder and member of the board at RTT.

Tim Bunting, Partner of Balderton Capital: "RTT has an impressive track record and a great management team. We are convinced that they have the potential for much more. 3D High-end visualization is a very interesting segment and RTT has shown how to make productive business use of the technology. We are glad being able to help them to bring this to the next level."
